

Ganga Darshan: Maa started strenuous meditation at a very young age of around 7/8 years. She used to bolt her in isolation for days together and worshipped Goddess Durga day & night. Many times other ladies of the family used to feel divine light & fragrances emanating from her room. Many times giggles of baby girls were heard as if they playing & talking. When the door was made to open, there was no body besides her to be found. One could watch her sitting in meditation the whole night. In the summers too, she was found on the roof top in meditative stance.

Maa's family went to Haridwar on a pilgrimage for Ganga Snan (Holy dip in river Ganga- river Ganga is called Ganga Maiyya too, i.e Mother Ganga) but she was made to stay at home only. That total stay at home she longed to go for Ganga Snan. When her family came back from Haridwar, Maa told her family members that Ganga Maiyya has given her darshan (glimpse) at home only and she has been gifted with a divine container filled with Ganga water (Ganga Jal). What ever material or immaterial experiences her family had at Haridwar, Maa narrated every thing in detail to the family. After this incident, the family's regard for her increased manifold.
